

Remember the Children

© Mark Raue, 2002

1. Re - mem - ber all chil - dren their
2. Re - mem - ber all chil - dren be -
3. Re - mem - ber all chil - dren whose
4. Instrumental love and their laugh - ter. Face - s full of won - der trayed and for - got - ten. Reach - ing out for kind - ness, night - mares are re - al. No one to pro - tect them, smiles that last for - ev - er. All the joy and the hope that com - fort and a - ten - tion. All the hurt and the fear that noth - ing left to ste - al. In an X rat - ed world where each chi - ld brings. Chil - dren, re - lost child - hood means. Chil - dren, re - we would not be seen. Chil - dren, who mem - ber the chil - dren.

 mem - ber the the cares for the chil - dren. So, how can we live ig -

G A G F#m
 nor - ing the cries of inn - o - cent voice - s
 G A G F#m prec - ious in God's eye - s. Some - bod - y's chil - dren but G D Em⁷ F#m⁷
 no bod - y's child. Each child's a gift child.
 G A Asus⁴ to verse 3.4
 Your child, my (oh -) child.
 Em⁷ F#m⁷ G
 Chil - dren, please care for the D Bm
 chil - dren. Oh,
 G A chil - dren, re - mem - ber all D Dsus⁴ D
 chil - dren.

Remember the Children

Remember all children their love and their laughter.
 Faces full of wonder, smiles that last forever.
 All the joy and the hope that each child brings.
 Children, remember the children.

Remember all children betrayed and forgotten.
 Reaching out for kindness, comfort and attention.
 All the hurt and the fear that lost childhood means.
 Children, remember the children.

So how can we live ignoring their cries
 Of innocent voices precious in God's eyes.
 Somebody's children but nobody's child.
Each child's a gift child; your child, my child.

Remember all children whose nightmares are real.
 No-one to protect them, nothing left to steal.
 In an X-rated world where we would not be seen.
 Children, who cares for the children?
 Children, please care for the children.
 Oh children, remember all children.